

The Problem It Solves

Imagine you built a software product, but you don't have time to go around the internet (Reddit, Twitter, LinkedIn, etc.) looking for people who might want to buy it. That's exhausting and time-consuming.

What SalesSig Does

It's basically a robot salesperson that works 24/7.

Here's the simple flow:

Watches Reddit, Twitter, LinkedIn, Hacker News, etc. but we will watch hacker news, dev.to and producthunt.

Finds people who are asking questions or complaining about problems your product solves

Replies to them automatically with helpful, relevant messages

Tells you which replies actually brought you customers

A Real Example

Say you built a project management tool. Someone posts on Reddit:

"Ugh, I can't keep track of my team's tasks, any tool recommendations?"

SalesSig spots this, replies for you, drives them to your website, and then tells you "Hey, that Reddit reply brought you 3 paying customers!"

Who Uses It?

Small startup founders and solo builders who can't afford a full marketing or sales team.

Bottom Line

SalesSig = AI agent that finds your future customers online, talks to them, and shows you what's making you money.
